

Pexx Provides Critical Wireless Link for Super Bowl XXXVIII Security

Pexx, Inc., a Houston based wireless networking solution provider, has delivered critical wireless link as part of the enhanced security apparatus at the Super Bowl XXXVIII festivities in Reliant Park and Stadium in Houston.

Live video from security cameras in multiple locations were sent over a dedicated primary wireless link to an undisclosed location where "Special Response Teams" were deployed in an active standby mode before, during and after the game. Images from cameras were available to members of multiple City, County, State, and Federal agencies as part of their emergency preparedness.

Jennifer Greene, President of Pexx, Inc. noted that "our role with the Houston Police Department helped to make Super Bowl XXXVIII the success that it was." Ms. Greene pointed out that "the cost to install fiber for this special event was prohibitive and Pexx stepped up and offered to provide a wireless 36 Mbps secure link. Pexx continues to demonstrate the cost benefit and secure methods of wireless technology. Standing at the forefront of contemporary technology, Pexx meets the current demand to move much larger volumes of data at higher speeds. Greene states "we are doing that every day with new and innovative products and integration as we continue to evolve our solutions to meet the increasing demands of the future." Lower cost infrastructure and data security as well as data integrity are very much a part of the wireless technology deployed by Pexx. "Pexx is very proud to be a leader in this industry and to have partners that manufacture top of the line equipment. Not only did we play a role in helping The City of Houston to host a safe and secure event but we saved tens, if not hundreds of thousands of taxpayer dollars, we are very proud of that," concluded Ms. Greene.
